PHILATHEA CLASS

RED CROSS MEETING.

The Philathea Girls of the Polk Street Methodist church will hold their regular Red Cross meeting Monday evening at the home of Mrs. W. M. Rice, 1409 Van Horn street. All members are earnestly requested to be present.

GET IN IT RIGHT.

It we're in it.
Let's get in it.
From our head unto our feet;
Can't win it.
Or begin it.
Without courage, vim and heat.
Start things going.
Fight or hoeing.
Not to follow or be led
But to keep the bugles blowing
Where our valiant legions tread.
Keep the banner ever flying—
O'er the living and the dying—
Not a slacker left on hand
Top to bottom of the land—
Just a nation rising finely.
Rising daintily, divinely.
Springing early out of bed,
Going late to rest—forever
With set purpose and design
Meeting with its vast endeavor
Every charge along the line.
—The Benetown Bard.

IMAGINATIVE NARRATIVE OF SUBMERGED TRANSPORT.

The night is calm and still and the great American transport, Antilles, is on her joyful homeward journey, guarded by convoy ships seeking to protect her, as little boys would protect their mother, had they the power.

The cheery "Sammies" each performing his duty in guarding the Nation, a dastardly submarine ever lurking, ever watching, in the darkness for her prey strikes squarely at the heart of the mother engine.

The boys on deck, with one chance for their lives, assist each other and escape but the boys below go down with the ship. They, smooth, boyish faces float beneath the stars, unafraid, the waves close over the khaki clad lads and in five minutes all is still.

Underneath, likeimps of Hell, the German submarine crew laugh and shout in glee "Bravo Fritz you hit her square. Fine shot, good boy". Yet, you Huns, we admit you fired well.

The next night the sympathetic stars shone upon a humble cottage, a messenger boy knocked at the worn door, the silver haired mother, with shaking hand, reaches for the little yellow slip, it falls to the floor. The boy rides on the little errands of sorrow. The cold morning beams fall upon the bowed head, a shawl over her shoulders in silent sobless grief.

Aye Huns and Fritz drink on and gloat that you shot true into the mother heart, but if God lets me live until I reach my bank I'll strike back with one or two or ten, or more Liberty Bonds.

God! Can a man with American red blood in his veins stand back with pictures like these burned and etched into his brain?—By Margaret Rider.

DATA GLEANED FROM THE RED CROSS WORK ROOM.

The local chapter of the Red Cross has been advised by the Southwestern headquarters at St. Louis to use their influence in forming Junior Red Cross headquarters in the public schools of Amarillo. The project has been submitted to officials of the school and plans are now near completion to make this work one of the outstanding features of the curriculum.

The Amarillo Chapter of the Red Cross will hold a class in first aid. Those who wish to take the course will please register at the Red Cross rooms as soon as possible. Information can be obtained by calling Mrs. G. T. Vineyard.

The Red Cross will ship another box of pajamas within a day or two. This will make the second box, which contains 120 pajamas, alone, that has been sent out by the local chapter.

The local Red Cross, ever alert to the needs of the khaki clad boys, have again manifested their ability and promptness in supplying the wants of our boys in training. This was proven by the following letter: Mrs. Avery Turner, Chm. Potter County Red Cross Chapter, Amarillo, Texas.

Dear Madam: Acknowledging your kind favor of October 4th advising that the Potter County Red Cross Chapter had shipped five boxes of magazines for distribution and use of members of this company.

I wish to acknowledge receipt of the reading matter referred to, same being received in good condition, and at the same time let me extend the sincere thanks of all the officers and enlisted men of this company to the Potter County Red Cross Chapter for the interest manifested in our behalf and the promptness of action in supplying our wants.

Again thanking you, I am
Respectfully
THOMAS D. BARTON,

Captain 142nd Infantry, Cmn. Co. Company "G."

The Red Cross Home Institute has postponed its opening from the 15th of this month until the 29th, on account of the Fair which is in session there now.

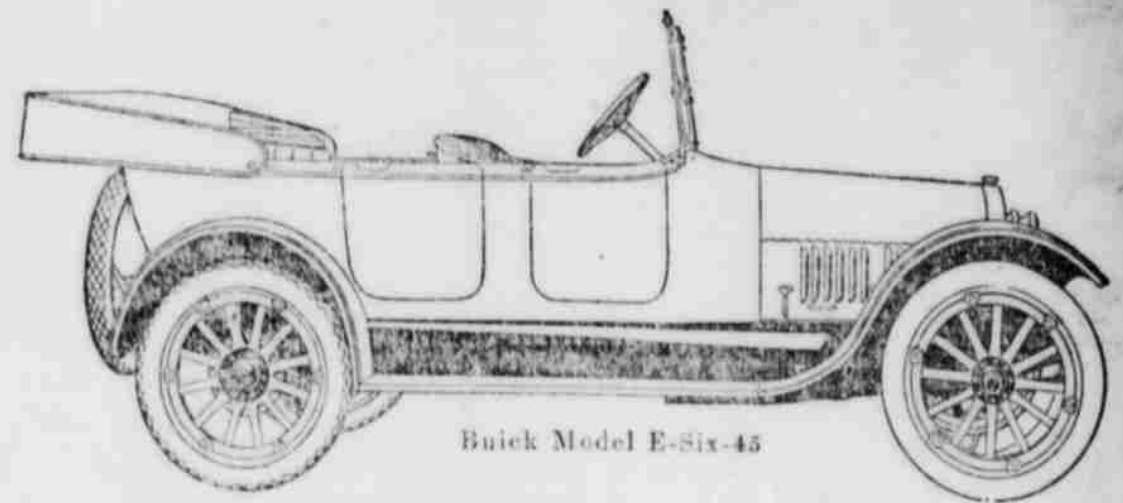

The headquarters at St. Louis has been laying great emphasis upon the conservation of yarn, and reiterates that these knitted garments should only be sent to those in active service.

as the French and United States soldiers in France and Belgium. Those in training in this country are not expected to have them.

The crowds and interest increase in the Red Cross rooms, and officials state that anyone who will offer their services in this work will be appreciated.

Mrs. E. E. Pickrell has returned from Chardon, where she remained for several days conducting classes in surgical dressings.
